

LONGLISTS ANNOUNCED FOR 2021 UKLA BOOK AWARDS

In a challenging year, UKLA [1] have announced the longlists for the UKLA Book Awards. As publisher submissions were invited, publishers were in lockdown, distribution warehouses were closed and in some cases, it proved impossible to get physical books delivered to the longlisting panels (composed of experienced past teacher judges, ex-teachers, librarians and consultants) Yet despite this, there were 410 submissions across the four categories with two full days of online selection discussions to arrive at the longlists.

Awards Chair, Christine Lockwood, said "The quality of the submissions this year was simply outstanding and the choices the panels had to make were very difficult, under difficult circumstances, but we are very proud of these lists and know that these quality texts will have a real impact in the classrooms of the teacher judges."

The lists highlight a diverse range of authors from exciting debuts to prize-winners and best-sellers. All the books exemplify the award's aim of encouraging teachers' knowledge of high-quality children's books that can reflect all identities and promote diversity.

This year the teacher judges for Fiction and Poetry again come from the Midlands, and the 2021 UKLA International Conference, at which the winners will be announced, being held in Oxford. The judging of the category for Information Books is taking place in London. There are 65 judges in total covering the four categories and they have until mid-March to read the longlisted books, discuss them with their group leaders, and share them with pupils. All groups will then meet, hopefully in person, for the difficult task of choosing their shortlist of 6 books in each category.

Headteachers welcomed the opportunity to receive new books for their schools and for their teachers to widen their knowledge of recent children's titles. For UKLA, giving classroom practitioners the opportunity to read a number of new children's books is as important as finding an overall winner. Research carried out by members of UKLA (Cremin et al 2008) clearly demonstrated the links between teachers' knowledge of children's books and the likelihood of pupils becoming successful readers. Despite this evidence, teachers are seldom given time to read new books or funding to purchase them when they do.

UKLA are grateful for the continued support of the award sponsors, which help the awards to grow and develop each year. Capita Reading Cloud, LoveReading4schools and LoveReading4kids.
